

INTELLIGENCE AND ASPIRATION FOR HIGHER EDUCATION OF HIGHER SECONDARY SCHOOL STUDENTS IN MALAPPURAM DISTRICT.

Name of student : BINDU K
Name of supervising teacher : MANOJ PRAVEEN G
Year of study : 2011

OBJECTIVES

- To find out if there exists any significant relationship between intelligence and Aspiration for higher education of higher secondary school students.
- To find out if there exists any significant relationship between intelligence and Aspiration for higher education of higher secondary school students in the subsample based on, gender type of management of institution and .locality.

METHODOLOGY

Method used : Survey method
Sample : 450 higher secondary school students from 9 schools in Malppuram District.
Tool : Verbal group Test of Intelligence scale, Aspiration for Higher Education Opinionnaire (manoj & Bindu 2011)
Statistical technique : Preliminary Statistics, Pearson's Product Moment co-efficient of Correlation (r), Test of significance of Mean Difference for Independent sample

RESULT

There exists significant relationship between intelligence and Aspiration for higher education of higher secondary school students in the subsample based on, gender, type of management / institution,locality. There exists significant difference in intelligence and Aspiration for higher education of higher secondary school students between relevant subsample based on, type of management / institution,locality,subject

KEY TERMS :Aspiration for higher education, intelligence, higher secondary school students